The grey market fequivalent to your 240D is the YM2210D. The later 2TR20B and the 2T90 engines will bolt into the tractor. I found this out the hard way. My YM2210D engine was tagged, "2T90" which is correct for that tractor. I repeatedly received wrong parts for that engine until I discovered that the engine in my tractor was actually a 2TR20.

A lady I met yesterday is selling her Yanmar YM2000, but it has a cracked engine block from being out in the freezing cold this winter. It would run now but overheats. It appears that somebody tried welding the crack but didn't do a good job (pourous). How much would I be looking at in repairs for this? The tractor is $1500 firm as is.

I believe the 84/90 is piston diameter in mm, although that doesn't hold true for smaller engines like 2T20, etc. Pat: I have a Yanmar 3110D with that engine in it. Though I have not owned the tractor since new, it does not appear the engine was ever painted JD Green. The tractor is red and Yanmar green on the engine.
