I think he's referring to the Z31's, not Z32 part interchangeability. In that case, the motors are almost the same (VG30E and VG30ET), but slightly different - just different enough to keep you from picking up a bunch of Z31 parts. I would go w/ the cam and u can probably install a pathfinder intake manifold - longer runners ot make more torque.

I too have a TT and a Slicktop. My end goal is to get the weight of the car to a comfortable 2700 lbs and somehow extract 270whp out of the engine. I currently have a basically stock JDM engine in the car, but am in the slow process of building a high revving NA setup to replace the current engine when the new girl is complete.
